

---

Technology Management Certificate
Awarded June (graduation) 2020
UC Santa Barbara, College of Engineering

Congratulations,

You have received a diploma from one of the top universities in the world, University of California Santa Barbara, and deserve to reflect on this significant accomplishment. But more than that, you have also joined a very special group of UC Santa Barbara graduates who have also earned the Technology Management Certificate. Truly, congratulations!

In 2006, the College of Engineering welcomed its first Technology Management Certificate cadre. Since that class of 7, the College has graduated over a thousand of esteemed TM Certificate students. While our classes and program continue to advance and grow, it is still bound to its ambitious roots – to provide an excellent and novel interdisciplinary business focused education to the students of UC Santa Barbara and preparing them to successfully enter tomorrow's technology driven businesses. Our graduates have gone on to advance quickly and to contribute significantly to the organizations they have joined. They have started companies, led projects and teams, launched new products and contributed positively to society. We know that you will continue in that tradition. While our current business environment is challenging, you can be confident that you have the skills and the attitude to compete successfully in this unusual time.

The TM Certificate was designed in collaboration with practitioners to ensure that the strategy, marketing, management and finance classes you have successfully completed, in addition to the successful completion of your academic major, will help you succeed. Your completion required a substantial commitment on your part, you achieved real levels of excellence and you worked in teams to accomplish difficult goals. Congratulations, your achievement of the TM Certificate is an important and outstanding event.

We welcome you to the alumni ranks of the Technology Management Program, celebrate your achievement and look forward to your continued engagement.

Sincerely,

Kyle Lewis, Chair
Technology Management Program

Gary Hansen, Director
Technology Management Certificate Programs